

2011 bio

Nadine May Lewis is a native of the Hudson Valley, New York. Currently, she has sketchbooks on international tour with the Brooklyn Art Library. She has poetry and photography books available at Blurb.com. Nadine works out of the Counter Culture Kids Studio, and is a member of the Art Society of Kingston. Photography, painting, and poetry have always been her biggest passion, her works are visceral explorations of sexuality, myth and creation using the human form as a platform for deeper inspection. She sees the body image as being part of creation and therefore tantamount to creativity.

Often her work is playful, finding forms of the body replicated in architecture and plants. She thoroughly enjoys art work and poetry, although her greatest creations by far are Eamon and Nora her two children. She is married to filmmaker and media professor Gregory Bray.
